Fire & Water Wins Two Awards in Lighting for Tomorrow Competition

Fire & Water's Flipster and Fibonacci series have each been awarded Honorable Mentions for Use of Sustainable Materials in the second annual Lighting for Tomorrow Competition, it was announced today. Fire & Water was the only company to garner two awards.

Lighting for Tomorrow "aims to encourage fixture manufacturers to produce a range of new lighting fixtures that will complement home decor, provide high-quality light, and save consumers money by using less electricity. The winners and finalists of the 2005 competition ably demonstrate how innovative design can incorporate both high style and energy efficiency." Judges for the 2005 competition were:

Bernie Bauer, Integrated Lighting Concepts, Westlake Village, CA
John Fallon, Seattle Lighting, Seattle, WA
Miguel Hutton, KB Homes, Las Vegas, NV
Jeff Jacobs, Centex Homes, San Francisco, CA
Robyn Lawrence, Natural Home & Garden Magazine, Denver, CO
Linda Lentz, Independent Editor, New York, NY
Oliver Morse, Independent Consultant, Berkeley, CA
Ziggy Psarski, CSA International, Toronto, Ontario, CANADA
Patricia Rizzo, Lighting Research Center, Troy, NY
Marilyn Schulman, Bay Shore Lighting, Bay Shore, NY
Paul Vrabel, ICF Consulting,* Arlington, VA

*representing the EPA/DOE ENERGY STAR® program

Fire & Water's was also honored, for its Lulu series, in the first Lighting for Tomorrow Competition
